of Dalhousie University Law School, Halifax, Nova Scotia and of Memorial University of Newfoundland. He has worked with the Federal Government since 1986, both as a Ministerial Advisor (in the portfolios of Transport, International Trade and Fisheries and Oceans) and as a Trade Negotiator. His experience in trade negotiations began with the Canada-U.S. FTA in 1988 and continued with the NAFTA, the Uruguay Round of Multilateral Trade Negotiations and the creation of the WTO. From 1997-2000, he held several positions within the then Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade focusing on trade policy issues and negotiations related to services, investment, competition policy, intellectual property, cultural industries, telecommunications and electronic commerce. In August 2000, he was named Minister-Counsellor, Economic and Trade Policy, at the Canadian Embassy in Washington DC. In September 2004, he was appointed Director General of the North America Bureau where he was responsible for Canada's bilateral relations with the U.S. and Mexico and for the trilateral Canada-U.S.-Mexico agenda. In October 2007, Bill became the first Assistant Deputy Minister of the Consular Services and Emergency Management Branch. He was appointed as Canada's Ambassador to the Islamic Republic of Afghanistan in August 2009 - a rewarding position that he held for two years during which Canada's military combat mission and Provincial Reconstruction Team in Kandahar concluded and Canada's new training and development mission for the period 2011-2014 was launched. In September 2011, Bill returned to headquarters as the Assistant Deputy Minister for the recently expanded Consular, Security and Emergency Management Branch. When the Department transitioned to a new organizational model (combining functional and geographic duties) in May 2012, Bill became responsible for North America. In November 2013, with the amalgamation of the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade and the Canadian International Development Agency, Bill became the Assistant Deputy Minister of the Consular, Security and Legal Branch at the Department of Foreign Affairs, Trade and Development. Bill also holds the title of Legal Adviser, Department of Foreign Affairs, Trade and Development Canada (DFATD), 125 Sussex Drive, Ottawa, ON, K1A0G2; Tel. +343-203-3570.
